Dear Hosta Friends:

Hostas continue to be the Number 1 perennial in the United States today, followed by Daylilies!

Our gardens contain probably one of the best reservoirs of the Hosta genus in the nation. Please plan to visit our gardens and polyhouses that are full of interesting varieties. You can view most of the older classic and heirloom cultivars from most of the old time hybridizers. Plan to visit three gardens of Herb & Dorothy Benedict; six gardens of Dick & Jane Ward; the Lucille Simpers collection; three collections of Van Wade; Zilis Collections #1 & #2; Alex Malloy Collection; Mildred Seaver Collection; Ran Lydell Collection; Ed Elslager Collection; Bob Solberg Collection; our Lakeside Collection; our Mouse Garden; and dozens of other Hosta Gardens.

If you are coming from a far, please call ahead to let us know so that we can put out our welcome mat! Families, garden clubs, groups, buses, etc. are all welcome and groups continue to book tours in sizeable numbers, increasingly so every year.

I wish to thank each and every one you for your continued support, your friendly visits, and kind words that increasingly seem to motivate all of us here.

Our Hosta Catalog and yearly pricing continues to expand. It is becoming increasingly difficult to keep up to date. We are online at www.wadeandgattonnurseries.com and our catalog is available in pdf form and can be viewed or downloaded. Our catalog contains over 250 pages and is difficult to bind and therefore limited copies are available.

Many new, different and outstanding cultivars, hybrids, sports, and seedlings are coming and in the pipeline, so to speak. So plan to visit and see our new, future plants in the making! Some of our new ones are our Native American Indian Tribe series (over 90 now named); our Indian Chief series (over 15 now named) and our Planetary series.

The best time for viewing our Hosta gardens is in late May, June and early July, but you are welcome to visit anytime!

Happy Hosta Gardening…

INF - Information about Hostas: HL – Picture in Hosta Library (http://hostalibrary.org)
HL* - Picture in Hosta Library is of Hosta located in our own gardens.
NEW-New plants listed for first time this year.

N - Quantity of new Hostas coming in to us from various growers and hybridizers.

RDY - Quantity of plants ready for sale now! These plants can be shipped Spring, Summer or Fall. Some will be 2-3 eye/crown plants, while others will be single crown divisions. We usually ship 2 eye/crown plants, unless they are rare plants that we have only small counts available on, and we can only ship 1 crown.

CRN - Number of crowns (eyes) available, after dividing from pots, field or garden grown plants. We normally try to ship the largest plants we have available.

GRD - Number of plants we have in gardens.

HOSTA VARIETY:

The correct alphabetical listing of Hostas, according to the Hosta Registrations and Registrar, and other leading authorities. A few plants in this list are duplications of older or obsolete names, but are listed for easy reference. A few names may be incorrect, but we have based our information on the 1995 edition of the I.C.N.C. (International Code of Nomenclature for Cultivated Plants). We attempt to follow the guidelines set up by the I.C.N.C. We are also following guidelines established by Mark Zilis's Hostapedia – December 1, 2008 edition.

PICK UP AT NURSERY:

Many customers are ordering, to be dug plants, in advance; then come to our nursery and select from our many polyhouses of plants that are potted and ready to go. Often then, browsing, and viewing through our Display Botanical Gardens. This is a very popular practice for customers from all over the U.S.A. and foreign customers. For those who want to see their plants in advance, try it! Please call in advance and let us know when you will be coming, we will put out our welcome mat!!

INTERNET SERVICE:

We are happy to announce that we do have a website available. Please go to wadeandgattonnurseries.com to view our website. We have not completed it to date, but it is coming!

DESCRIPTIONS & PICTURES:

For pictures, please go online to http://hostalibrary.org for photographs of Hostas. They have the largest collection of pictures of Hostas to date. Many of our Hostas have been photographed and Bob Axmear has put them into the Hosta Library. Hosta photographs that have been taken in our gardens and pictured in the Hosta Library, are designated in this catalog with "*" in the first column.

REFERENCES & ACKNOWLEDGMENTS:

We referenced the following sources to help compile our catalog: The Hosta Handbook by Mark Zilis (February 2004); the Hostapedia by Mark Zilis (December-2008); the American Hosta Guide by Van Wade (2002); the Hosta Library by Bob Axmer; the Hosta Finder by Steven H. Green (published yearly). There are also hundreds of Hosta hybridizers, nurseries, growers, and many, many friends from all over the world who have contributed their friendship, conversations, letters, catalogs, hostas to evaluate, grow on and to work with. I wish to thank my family and employees, whom I rely on daily to keep everything going, without them none of this would be possible. A personal thank you to all of our past, present, and future customers, as we are truly indebted to you. I personally wish to invite you to our gardens, and to give each of you or your garden group, a personal tour of our gardens and nursery. Please be sure to call ahead so that we can put out our welcome mat for you! Van R. Wade

PLANTING AND CARE OF HOSTAS

Hostas prefer a shady or partially shady, well drained, permeable soil. Each variety of Hosta has a different light requirement, making it possible to fit Hostas into any light situation. The blues tend to lose color in the sun, but the golds tolerate sun quite well. Most Hostas prefer only 25% shade in the form of high filtered trees.

WHO SHOULD PLANT HOSTAS?

Every home owner has a shade location somewhere, or can provide a proper site by planting a tree or group of plants that cast shade. Every commercial planting, whether it be an office building, apartment or condominium complex, park, golf course, or municipal building, has just the right place for a certain type of Hosta.

WHEN TO PLANT:

Plant Hostas in March through November 20. Potted Hostas grow better than bare root crowns, but excellent success is possible with bare root Hostas, with the proper care. We do not wish to crown cut tender, newly leafed Hostas in May and June, and may suggest waiting until foliage matures on certain varieties of Hostas.

WHERE TO PLANT:

Prepare the planting location where proper shade conditions exist. Select a site with good drainage (deep soil permeability, not necessarily surface drainage). The soil should be able to retain moisture, so organic matter, such as Canadian Spaghnum Peat Moss, dehydrated or well composted manure, or compost from gardening, should be mixed into the soil. A ration of 1/3 to 1/2 organic matter to 2/3 to 1/2 soil is best. We are now using up to 30% coarse sand in all plant beds, gardens and potting mixes for Hostas.

HOW TO PLANT:

Each plant should have a prepared hole about the size of a half bushel basket to that of a full size bushel basket.

Before planting a one or more bare root crown division of Hosta, soak the entire plant for at least 1 hour, but no more, in water with a good soluble fertilizer such as Peters with Iron or Rapid-Gro with Iron. To this solution a small application any other good garden fungicide might be of benefit.

Potted Hostas cost more, but the extra rewards are that they establish faster, grow better, and usually are larger, older plants to start with. These may also be soaked, but is it not necessary to do so.

Bare Root one or more crown plants may need to have the leaves trimmed when transplanting.

Fertilizer mixed into the soil mix should be in the form of predominantly a phosphorous and potash mix, and low in nitrogen.

For the best results, we are using about one handful of Sierra or Osmocote fertilizer, a handful of alfalfa meal, thoroughly mixed into the full one-half bushel or full bushel area.

Plant the center of the crown just slightly above soil level, and water slowly and thoroughly. When water has soaked in a mulch of shredded hardwood bark, pine needles, or Canadian Spaghnum Peat Moss, 2 to 3 inches deep should be applied, especially for overwintering the first year. (We prefer, Pinus strobus, Eastern White Pine needles).

BUYING BARE ROOT VS. CONTAINER GROWN HOSTAS

A. Both grow and transplant very well if handled properly. In general, more care is required prior to planting Bare Root Hostas.

B. Container Grown Hostas contain all the plants roots, whereas Bare Root Hostas are often Crown Cut, and generally have fewer roots.

C. Some growers offer field grown, 1 or 2 year plants with full sets of roots and these are often equal to Container Grown plants.

D. Hostas are sold in different sized containers. They generally are available in 1 quart, 2 quart or Number 1 Containers, which are generally regarded to be a 1 gallon, but are not, or No. 1.5 or No. 2 Container plant. The smaller the container, generally the smaller and younger the plant is.

E. We generally like to see plants have a good set of roots, equally divided around the eye or eyes (crown) of the plant.

F. Bare Root Hostas generally are clean washed prior to shipment, wrapped and labeled. From here they come from container grown plants or are dug from the Gardens, or are from our field rows.

EYES, CROWNS AND MOTHER HOSTA PLANTS

Hostas multiply by growth eyes called crowns. When you buy a Hosta, most often the buyer will receive one or two eye plants. Many sellers prefer to sell two or more eyed plants, but, inventory and available plants of a particular variety may be in short supply. Many new selections expect to receive only a single eye or crown. Each eye will grow into a full plant and may grow to 2 to 3" in the first season, but not assuredly. Generally the smaller ones multiply faster than the larger eyes. Some of the larger Hostas may only multiply an eye or two per year. Most often we prefer to ship two eye or crown plants.

1. Mother plants are older plants that contain 2, 3, or more eyes. A 5 year old Hosta may contain 4, 5, maybe 10 eyes. Each variety has different looking eyes or crowns.

2. Eyes form at the base of leaves. They can usually be first observed in August of each year on a plant and continue to enlarge daily through the Winter. Then in Spring, each eye will continue to grow and lengthen and eventually grow leaves in May and June, then blossom and become a grown plant in late June and July.

TISSUE CULTURE PLANTS
VS.
CROWN CUT DIVISIONS or POTTED HOSTAS

A. Tissue Culture plants are the newest, State of the Art technology of plant reproduction. New varieties are now being rapidly multiplied to fill the customer needs.

B. Tissue Culture reproduces clones of the parent plant.

C. When you buy tissue culture hostas, and they are usually one year or less old, they generally are one eye plants, often are 3 to 8" tall, contain a full set of leaves and resemble the parent, but not in full detail. It may take a few years of normal plant growth for a young tissue culture plant to become a full sized mother plant.

D. Tissue culture labs are becoming very professional in getting true to form plants. Most plants are true to form and reliable. Unfortunately, a few varieties are hard to propagate by tissue culture.

E. Some problems have become evident in a few tissue culture varieties, such as H. 'Northern Halo', Hosta 'Gold Edger', Hosta 'Golden Prayers', Hosta 'Blue Skies', Hosta 'Blue Angel', Hosta 'Frances Williams', and a few others.

BUYING HOSTAS THROUGH THE MAIL

A. Both bare root hostas and container grown plants can be shipped customarily via United Parcel Service or U. S. Postal Service.

B. Most sellers and shippers prefer to mail on Monday, Tuesday, or Wednesday, that way you are assured your customer will receive the plant prior to the weekend.

C. Usually shipping costs are 10 percent of the plant costs, depending upon the size, value and quantity of plants purchased.

D. For the most part, most shippers are becoming very professional in handling plants.

E. We prefer that you would buy plants from suppliers who are members of our Hosta societies. That way you are assured of true-to-name selections. We notice that often those firms who are not members of our Hosta organizations find it hard to keep up with new varieties and the latest up-to-date nomenclature, as well as the latest planting techniques.

PROPER BED AND GARDEN LAYOUT FOR HOSTAS

A. Take a ball of twine, lay a stone, branch, bucket, or clump of soil on the end and walk along the bed line of a new bed. A nice looking new flower garden of any merit usually should have gentle curves, oval, boomerang shape, not square or in a perfect circle. Curves should gently flow. If the area is large, use the string to outline a path or two. It's fun to layout a bed this way. You can dream of putting in a sitting bench perhaps. Always round out the corners. If possible, mound up the soil 6" to 2' deep in areas. Plan to put in a stone or an ornamental tree or two.

B. Plant beds can take on any size or form. Fit your imagination. Be unique! But .... do it! There are hundreds of ideas ..... most probably will be good ones. We seldom see blunders because plants fit well into almost any situation.

C. Visit other gardens....learn and improve your own garden by what you see others do. If you join plant societies, you will get invited into gardens, you previously were totally unaware of...and open doors of enjoyment, that are seemingly endless.

D. Sand: Add liberal amounts of coarse sand to your new bed area. It is very inexpensive and probably the cheapest additive you can get. Most bed areas can easily accommodate two inches spread over the whole area.

E. Cattle Manure: Add another layer, 2" deep, of any good animal manure. Often horse farms use sawdust or wood shavings for bedding. This material is also inexpensive, is cleaner to work with than you think and does help plants grow.

F. Add as much Canadian Spaghnum Peat Moss and/or Pro-Mix BX as you can afford. Usually a shovel full or two per hole is adequate. Very expensive plants that cost $50.00 to $200.00 each, we've found, that it really isn't out of line to spend the equivalent of $4.00 to $6.00 per hole and give that plant some really good stuff to grow on!

G. Powdered Rock Phosphate: Add a liberal amount by scattering fifty pounds out over the entire bed (50 lbs. per 500 square foot), which would be a bed 15' x 33'.

BEST SUN OR SHADE CONDITIONS FOR HOSTAS

A. Hostas like all morning sunshine, and semi-shade or full shade thereafter. They like more sun than was previously thought!

B. 33% shade is best here in Central Ohio. High filtered, overhead shade cloth, or tall trees are best.

C. Fragrant Hostas must have more sun in order to bloom well. Varieties are Royal Standard, Honeybells, Sweet Susan, So Sweet, Sugar & Cream, Summer Fragrance, Iron Gate Series of Hostas, plantaginea, Aphrodite, etc. These varieties require one-third of the day or more Sun! If you plant them in full shade, they will have an impaired blooming period, and may shrink in size.

D. We have observed Hosta 'undulata Albomarginata' growing in many areas in full sun. As well as Hosta 'August Moon', 'Sun Power', 'Daybreak', and a few other golden Hostas.

E. Generally the Gold Hostas can tolerate more sunshine. Hosta 'Richland Gold' prefers semi-shade and will burn out in the full sun.

F. Most Hostas will grow in full sun, but will sunburn and are somewhat more green, but do multiply well, in the sun. Particularly so of Hosta 'Royal Standard', 'Honeybells', ventricosa, most Fortuneis, Nakiamo, Pearl Lakes, Francee, Lancifolia, Erromena, etc.

G. Morning sun is best. Avoid hot afternoon sun, if possible.

H. Real dark, fully shaded areas should be avoided. Generally the dark green and blue Hostas will do better in more shade because they have more chlorophyll. The variegated ones have less chlorophyll and do better with more sunshine, but generally not full sun. Full sun is hot and the heat will deteriorate the Hosta leaves from the edges inwards. Golden Hostas and most variegated forms require more sun than do all green or solid blue-green forms.

SHADE AND ORNAMENTAL TREE ROOTS AND HOSTAS

A. Roots of trees compete for available plant nutrients and moisture.

B. Best trees to plant Hostas under and around are:

1. Oak trees (Red; Pin; White, etc.)
2. Nut trees (Hickory; Walnut; Butternut; etc.)
3. Sour Gum (Nyssa sylvatica)

Why? Because they are deep rooted.

C. Maple trees, Sassafras, Wild Cherries, Larch. These have invasive roots. They grow right up into and trespass on your Hosta plants root zones.

D. Hostas will grow under most and all trees, but you must realize that problems do exist. Summer water may be a factor that your plants won't get as big as you'd like.

E. You can put down a root barrier and mound up good soil above the shade tree root zone. This is a special new plastic fabric that allows air and moisture to penetrate, but not roots.

F. Do not use black plastic or clear plastic as a root barrier. It just does not work well.

SELECTION OF COMPANION PLANTS FOR HOSTAS

A. Pulmonarias, Ferns, Astilbes, Primroses, all come in many shapes and forms.

B. Some evergreens add a great deal to design of plant beds. Varieties such as Hemlocks and their weeping forms; Chamaecyparis, Hollies and Boxwood are best.

C. The various forms of Dogwoods, Beech, Magnolias can be sparingly used.

D. Groundcovers of Ivies, Vinca, Ajuga, Gingers, Epimediums, Soloman's Seals and Grasses.

E. Daylilies, Spring blooming Daffodils, Crocus, Scilla, Hyacinths etc.

F. There is a seemingly endless variety of rare and unusual conifers, rock garden plants, many of which are almost unknown are fast becoming used. There are well over one hundred plant societies that specialize in many Genera. Knowledge of that Genus of plant is available through its particular Society. American Rock Garden Society, American Daylily Society, American Conifer Society, Ohio Nut Growers Society, American Fern Society, Perennial Plant Associations, Holly Society, American Magnolia Society, American Iris Society, etc.

PROPER SPACING OF HOSTAS

Hostas come in a variety of sizes. Generally they are:

1.	Giant	4-6' Wide	Plant 4-6' Apart
2.	Large	3-4' Wide	Plant 3-4' Apart
3.	Medium	2' Wide	Plant 2' Apart
4.	Small	1-2' Wide	Plant 18"- 2' Apart
5.	Miniature	6-12" Wide	Plant 15-18" Apart
6.	Dwarf	3-6" Wide	Plant 6-15" Apart

Our largest Hosta is Hosta 'Sum and Substance' and it is 9 1/2' wide and gets 5' tall, but this is because a lot of work was done in bed preparation and we do have a groundhog buried beneath it.

Generally the Giants only grow to 4' wide in five years or so..

INITIAL PLANTING FERTILIZERS FOR HOSTAS

Choose basically from these:

Powdered Rock Phospate:

The all organic form of Phosphorous, a non-burning form, rather inexpensive. Is available in fifty pound bags. This product is naturally quarried in Florida and is a very good product to use on vegetables and other varieties of plant material. It helps get better and stronger roots, stems, and leaves. It contributes to greener, more disease resistant plants. A very fine, heavy powdery fertilizer. Use one full handful up to a half cup per plant, mixed well into whole (one bushel size) root zone area. Also, good to mix into all surrounding bed and plant growing areas.

Sierra Blen (18-7-10): (Now renamed to Sierra or Osmocote types- numbers vary)

A controlled release fertilizer, where the ingredients are released over a long period of time. Different formulations are available. All are good. We use the 8-9 month formulation. Use one tablespoon per gallon of soil area. For an average plant, we use about two handfuls per one bushel size root zone area. If you use in pots, one tablespoon per one gallon container. Use this also to top dress Hostas, once a year in early Spring before the eyes elongate. This can easily be the only fertilizer you really need annually.

Alfalfa Meal:

Normally a cattle feed supplement. But for gardeners it becomes an organic fertilizer containing non-burning essential elements that help keep your plants healthy, vigorous and we've found can help produce sporting. Use one to two handfuls per bushel size plant root zone area.

Green Sand:

Another all organic, non-burning material from the oceans. Contains most all trace minerals that have built up for centuries on the ocean floor. Use one handful per one bushel sized hole, mixed well into root zone area.

Other Fertilizers used by Hosta Lovers:

A. Dried Blood - one handful per plant mixed into about a bushel size root zone
B. Cottonseed Meal - one handful per plant mixed into root zone
C. Cattle and other animal manures - 1/2 shovel per bushel of soil root zone area
D. Other Garden Fertilizers - all can be used if used moderately. One handful mixed into the soil of each hole is considered adequate.

SHOULD WE MULCH OUR HOSTAS?

A. Mulch helps hold summer moisture.
B. Holds down weeds.
C. Keeps fungal diseases down by reducing splashing of organisms on the plants.
D. Keeps leaves and stems cleaner during rains and watering, mulches will reduce splashing.
E. Reduces erosion.
F. Kinds of mulches:

1. Shredded Hardwood Bark Mulch (probably our choice, because it eventually rots up and produces better soil conditions). Lightly top dress annually.
2. Cedar
3. Cypress
4. Cocoa Hulls
5. Shredded leaves and limbs.
6. Gravel, lava rock, silica stone, brick pieces, etc.
7. White Pine Needles and/or other pine needles.
8. Soil Conditioner (fine pine bark pieces).

Note: Many Hosta gardeners use no mulch at all. In fact, we've observed excellent gardens with none at all. Usually these gardeners frequently cultivate the soil by hoeing and stirring up the soil.

G. We have observed grass clippings, newspapers, and several types of weed barriers being used.

H. Black plastic for a weed barrier, topped by a mulch is absolutely a no-no!

SPRING, SUMMER AND FALL MAINTENANCE OF HOSTAS

Spring: Generally clean up leaves, twigs and any remaining leaves, stems, flower scapes from your Hostas before new growth starts. Straighten up labels and add a slow release fertilizer about a handful annually at this time. Do not get any fertilizer on the crowns or eyes of the plants!

Summer: Normal maintenance is weeding, watering as needed, is really all you need to do. Watch for slugs and black vine weevils. Remove bloom scapes when blooms are finished. Apply slug baits, sprays and systemic insecticides for nematodes using several kinds, at various intervals, if needed.

Fall: Cut remaining bloom scapes off and remove dead leaves after they have dried on older established clumps if you wish. It can also be done in Spring. Often bed areas look better if cleaned up in the Fall. We do some in the Fall, others in the Spring, as time is available. Highly visible areas look good with a light fresh mulch. New plants we like to mulch with fresh white pine needles, about 1.5 to 2" of the crown of the plant only.

LABELING:

Be sure to mark or label each plant. It is almost impossible to remember your plant names. Sample labels can be observed in other peoples gardens. This is another reason to visit other gardens and joining a Hosta Society! Several systems of labeling are readily available. A few are mentioned below:

1. EON Industry Garden Markers - Ohio
2. AAA Quality Engravers - Louisiana
3. Garden Fonts - New Hampshire
4. Aluminum Tags - Ruh - Ohio
5. Skrupky Gardens Signs - Wisconsin
6. Others in Garden Catalogs - Join A.H.S.

FALL VS. SPRING CLEAN-UP

Either or Both are Recommended:

A. Clean up in Fall is best for established plants in highly visible areas. Small weak plants that may pop up in winter feezes, leave foliage on.

B. Spring Clean up is mother natures way of protecting the plant for winter, by using its own dead, frozen, dried leaves as a mulch to protect itself from the harsh cold and drying winds and freezing and thawing. Slugs hide in winter leaves and munch on Hosta buds in winter.

C. Newly planted plants must be mulched in over winter (lightly) to prevent frost heaving. Plants simply are uprooted if not mulched in. We prefer 1 1/2" (two handfuls) of fresh White Pine Needles over each newly planted, tender plants.

ANNUAL FERTILIZATION OF HOSTAS

A. We prefer Spring, before growth appears, as best time. We use a slow release Sierra-Blen about 1 handful around the edge of the plant for a 2 to 5 eye plant. A large 15-20 eye plants probably 3 to 4 handfuls. Note: Do not apply fertilizer at any time, on top of, or on the new growth eyes, or leaves of the plants.

HOSTA WATERING TECHNIQUES

A. Hand Watering
B. Rainbird Sprinklers
C. Soaker Hoses
D. Drip Irrigation
E. Pop Up Sprinklers
F. Move around Yard Sprinklers

HOSTA HARDINESS AND OVERWINTERING

Hostas are basically a Zone 4 or 5 plant. They are cold hardy and can survive -20 and -35 degrees F. below zero temperatures.

1. Newly planted and young plants must be mulched and covered the first year or two after planting, otherwise small plants may heave out of the ground. Pottd Hostas cannot set out unprotected over winter.

2. Remarkable instances of cold hardiness have been reported among the A.H.S. members.

ARE THERE HARMFUL INSECTS OR DISEASES AFFECTING HOSTAS?

Hostas are tough, strong plants. Only a very few problems exist. As with most plants, some bugs like to eat them. Generally they are considered minor problems, but they exist and are listed below.

1. Slugs - eat holes in leaves (usually)
2. Black Vine Weevils - eat holes in leaves, frequently seen mostly on leaf edges and petioles.
3. Viruses and nematodes.

HOW LONG CAN A HOSTA SURVIVE WITHOUT DIVIDING?

Almost indefinitely. We have clumps that have been in one place without dividing for seventeen to tthirty-one years, others ten to twelve years.

WEEDS AROUND HOSTAS & HOW TO ELIMINATE THEM

A. Kill all weeds in any new bed, before you plant new plants. We spray with a post -emergence herbicide (Round-Up) prior to working up plant bed.

B. Eliminate tall nearby weeds that produce seed that can blow into your bed areas.

C. There are numerous new types of herbicides labeled to control weeds in Hostas. We use them sparingly in Hosta beds and potted Hostas, being careful not to apply on the crown or get it on the leaves of the Hostas.

D. Round-Up: We spray Hosta containers in very early Spring that have chickweed prior to eye emergence. It does not harm the plants. It only kills anything green. It is a post-emergence herbicide. We spray before you can see the color of the leaves.

MULTIPLICATION, SALES AND SHARING OF HOSTAS WITH OTHERS

A. Generally they do not come up true-to-name from seed. Only a few species come true.

B. Most seed produced from Hostas are viable, will grow and come up, but generally are not considered to be of merit, because they do not look like the seed parent they came from.

C. Bloom scapes should be removed before they go to seed. The seedlings that do come up are usually inferior seedlings, and most Hosta lovers consider them worthless.

D. Sometimes however a new variety can be found among random seedlings. This is extremely rare and perhaps one out of five thousand might be considered worthy of naming and registering.

NEW SPORTS AND VARIETIES TO WATCH FOR IN YOUR GARDEN

A. As you grow in Hosta knowledge, and as you learn more and more about Hostas, many of us do discover a new plant! Hostas sport rather easily. New varieties can rather easily be produced by correct, careful hand pollination.

B. Hostas have fairly large male and female flower parts that can easily be identified. This means that we can carefully select and hybridize, and pollination can be followed through with, with a minimum of work and effort.

C. Wouldn't you like to discover or have a plant all of your own? One that you can say probably wouldn't be here, if you weren't an interested gardener!

HOW MANY HOSTAS ARE THERE?

Upwards of 6,000 are now being identified, described and written about.

MAINTENANCE:

Water is important! We suggest five gallons per week be added per plant, when one inch of rainfall does not fall during the months of May, June, July, August, September, and October. Especially the first year or two after planting.

A side dressing of dehydrated or composted manure in early Spring will give added beauty to the Hostas.

An occasional few tablespoons of slow release Sierra Blend or Osmocote with Iron fertilizer around each Hosta in early Spring or midsummer also proves to be quite rewarding.

In Autumn, after the leaves wither and die from frosts and onset of Winter, the leaves may be trimmed off. We usually leave the bloom scapes about two inches long, so that when they are mulched (if mulching is done), the exact location of each can easily be seen.

It takes about four to five years for a young Hosta to become a mature field grown plant. So do not expect your newly planted Hosta to look like a mature plant the first year or two.

Bloom scapes should be cut to within 2 inches of the ground when blooms have finished.

We prefer fall clean up of older leaves on established clumps after full killing frosts. We like the cold winter weather to help sterilize the top of the soil and plant tips, as we feel many slugs and small insects can congregate and overwinter in the dead foliage. New and very young plants need some freeze and thaw protection and we like a mulch of White Pine needles over the new crowns.

INSECT & DISEASE PROBLEMS:

The predominant problem in Hosta are slugs and snails. Leaf spot may also be a problem. Snails and slugs prevail in rainy seasons, but can cause damage anytime. The pests prefer soft, immature growth. It is important to watch for snails and slugs early in the growing season, but watching any new growth throughout the season is advised. Slugs prefer moist, dark areas. It is important to avoid a watering pattern that leaves your plants wet before dark. Sanitation is a major key in control. Finding the slugs and removing them by hand along with removal of debris from the beds is critical. Slug bait is also an effective control. It is available in most garden centers and manufacturers instructions and recommendations should always be followed.

It is heartening to know that the older a plant gets the more pest resistant it becomes. Also many varieties are being varieties are being bred for greater resistance to slugs and snails.

Another insect called the Black Vine Weevil eats notches out of the sides of leaves and leaf petioles. It differs to slug and snail eating, as usually slugs do not eat from the leaf edges. There is a new biological control for Black Vine Weevil produced by Biosys of California. The consumer formulation name is Bio-vector and Bio-Safe.

Instances of virus and foliar nematodes are cropping up, and our Hosta Societies carry current information about them, or ask us!

Commercial pesticides are available to spray for slugs and black vine weevil, but require licensed pesticide applicators to apply because of new pesticides labeling. A few home owner sprays are fortunately still available. We have used beneficial nematodes successfully to destroy Black Vine Weevils. Inquire for further information. Systemic insecticides are now available for nematodes.

There are many garden store slug baits on garden center shelves that are relatively harmless to pets. Such as Deadline, Slug-it, etc. Always follow label directions to detail!

Another new slug killer solution is using non-foaming household ammonia at a 15% ammonia to 85% water and spraying it on your hostas between 9:00 and 12:00 p.m. This is great for killing slugs and does not harm the Hostas.

Wade & Gatton Nurseries, American Hostas, Daylilies and other Perennials, and Van & Shirley Wade, have donated hostas to many different Universities and research projects and is much too involved to report on it here. Please refer to the Mark Zilis, Hosta Handbook for information or call and ask Van about the latest continuing research.

HL*	0	72	1030	2	American Dream	Wade/Zilis-1999	M	Golden, creamy yellow with a wide, distinctive white margin; lavender flowers in August. This was a sport found on H. 'High Fat Cream' by Mark Zilis at Wade & Gatton Nurseries in 1993. Van registered it in1999. Foliage mound gets 65" wide x 24" tall. Leaves are 9" long x 6" wide. A very vigorous plant that grows well in mostly sun. I discovered over 125 full large clumps growing in numerous beds at the Bavarian Inn in Frankenmuth, Michigan in 2004. I could hardly believe it, they were in mostly full sun, and just below the Pied Piper Tower. They were just beautiful!	Aphrodite Garden, PH-32, BPL-2, C, BH-2	$10.00
HL*	0	5	30	4	American Eagle	Wade-1999	L	Foliage mound gets 30" wide x 20" tall, slow growing clump. Leaves are 9" long x 7.5" wide, 14 pair of veins, very dark green with a 2" plus, golden-yellow margin. Center leaves sometimes stand boldly and distinctly upright. Dull on top and with a good glaucous below below. Moderately cupped; deeply corrugated. Nearly round with a cordate base; leaf petiole is variegated. Nearly white flowers bloom July 15th to July 30th in Ohio on 27-30" scapes. A sport developed from H. 'Zounds'. HL	0	4	60	0	Blue Canoe		S	As described by Mark Zilis's Hostapedia, most of H. 'Blue Canoe' in the U.S. turn from a bluish cast in spring to a chartreuse coloring in the summer; hence some of us are calling some plants 'Gold Canoe', the more gold ones are 'American Gold Canoe' (TC). Gwen Black's plant in England seems to have more of a bluish cast in England, and lasts longer there as compared to those in the USA. It may be due to climatic differences. Mound grows 36" wide x 18" tall. Leaves have some folding like a canoe, are 8" long x 5" wide with 12 to 13 pair of veins.	Beside PH-10	$10.00
